About this item

Product details

The Coleman Sportcat Catalytic Heater will warm up any camping adventure, whether you're in an electricity free cabin or an outdoor tent, it's the heater for you. The SportCat, which attaches to the top of a 16.4 ounce propane cylinder (not included), provides plenty of warmth when you need it, with an output of 1,500 BTUs for up to 14 hours per tank. As a result, those chilly fall and spring evenings won't seem quite so inhumane. The Coleman Sportcat Catalytic Heater provides comfortable and flameless light both indoor & out. And thanks to the SportCat's stable, detachable base, you can rest the heater on pretty much any surface. Also equipped with an integrated handle for easy carrying, the SportCat delivers all the warmth you need for your camping expeditions.

Saved our behinds!

Without this we surely would have frozen to death. Woke up in the middle of the night to an ambient temperature of around 39 degrees in our tent. Finally got motivated to get out from under the 3 or 4 blankets and fired this baby up. While it didn't boost the temperature to a tropical level it did get us about a 15 degree increase which made ALL the difference! Yes, it was our first time camping and it was way late in the season, but thank goodness we had the right idea and bought this heater literally the day before we left for the woods! I followed other reviewers advice and burned up a whole tank of propane as soon as I got it to burn off that "new heater" smell. Otherwise, zero complaints about this item, would absolutely recommend it....

SportCat Heater

Not exactly what was portrayed in the add. The unit advertised had a push button starter to light the unit but when I received the unit it was an older version that has to be lit with a match. For the price it is to much trouble to return it so I will suck it up and keep this one but if you are planning on ordering one of these you may not get the version with the electric starter.

Convenient Heater.

This heater worked very well and provided an adequate amount of heat in a fairly large tent. Be very careful around children as my 6 year old son burned himself on the top of the heater despite my warning him to stay clear and not to touch, this had nothing to do with the heater of course. I lit the heater before our trip and let it burn for awhile to get rid of the smell that I had read about in other reviews but detected no such smell. Heater was easy to light and worked flawlessly. I have owned many Coleman products and have always been satisfied with them. I would definitely recommend this heater for a late fall or early spring camping trip as well as good in a duck blind or other hunting shelter.
